“Knowledge is Power”

Empowering Women
through
Knowledge of their Ancient Roots

Art, culture, and religion are inextricably bound to the history of people. Humanity's legacy has been primarily experienced through the lens of Judeo-Christian art, culture, and history. However, this limited heritage is only half of humanity's past. Forbidden Knowledge is a multi-part documentary that explores the origins and evolution of the feminine as a cultural ideology worldwide and how the suppression and regard for that ideology has significantly affected the world and the evolution of humanity.

This interdisciplinary project covers many humanities' themes and will span the globe. A significant approach to this project is from the perspective of women's art, heritage, and cultural anthropology. It documents the effect of the sacred feminine, or lack thereof, on these many cultures around the world.

We hope you will join us on this very important journey as we travel through the tapestry of time, clear away the sands of obscurity and ignorance, lift the millennia-old veil covering humanities consciousness and reveal . . . the face of the ancient feminine.
